There was a squish and a squash and Sickles measured his length in the street, but Mr. Davis was standing over his fallen adversary like an unbothered knight of old. When the Times man arose to his feet he shook himself to see if he was all there and then felt of his wheel to see if it had any kinks in it. His wheel was injured and his body was whole, but such a fall would not do Mr. Davis. His fore wheel was all warped and ruined and he had to lead his wheel to the shop for repairs. The cause of the collision was that they both tried to turn out the same way.
